SERVE SENDING CHURCHES

Week 3: Pray for Sent Ones

Cross-cultural workers are not superhumans or spiritual giants. They are ordinary believers who need the faithful prayers of God's people: prayers that are biblically grounded, informed, specific, and sustained over time. Attaching real names and current needs to our prayers will prevent our prayers from becoming generic and passionless.

Sent-ones need prayer in the following ways:

- Proclamation: For boldness and for the Lord to grant opportunities for evangelization to receptive hearers who are hungry for the truth.
- Power: For workers to root their ministry in the Word of God and in dependence upon the Spirit of God.
- Language and cultural wisdom: For diligence and perseverance in language study.
- Provision: For faithful, consistent, and timely financial support from individuals and churches to meet workers' needs and sustain their ministries.
- Protection: For protection from temptation, evil, violence, calamities, discouragement, and division.
- Piety and accountability: For workers to consistently exhibit holiness, humility, gentleness, and teachability, adorning the gospel well.
- Perseverance: For steady, unshakable endurance through rejection, transition, persecution, and seasons of slow-growing ministry, even when there is little visible fruit.
- Partnership: For unity, mutual trust, and shared vision among teams, teammates, and ministry partners.

Commit to finding specific gospel workers to pray for and encourage. Reach out, get to know them, and strengthen them for their task.
